TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE
DIRECTORS OF THE MERCANTILE LIBRARY COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA.

Presented at a Meeting of the Stockholders, January 14th, 1851.

GENTLEMEN—The return of another Anniversary imposes upon us the duty of laying before you an account of our stewardship—and in presenting the Twenty-eighth Annual Report, the encouraging assurance can be given, that the past year has been one of prosperity to the Company—that augmented means have extended its usefulness, and that its influence upon the community continues to be salutary.

A satisfactory and flattering condition of the finances will be presented in the accompanying report of the Treasurer, by which it will be seen that the whole amount of receipts, (including $560 54, balance on hand, from last year,) have been $6,747 23, and the expenditures $5,551 80; leaving a balance of $1,195 43.

Fully convinced that our true policy consists in placing the Institution free from debt, the Board of Directors have had this object steadily in view, and recently notified the holders of the ground rent, that they will be prepared to pay the sum of two thousand dollars towards its extinguishment. This payment, which it is intended to make during the present month, will reduce the incumbrance upon the property of the Company, to sixteen thousand dollars—making a total payment on the original cost of the building, and ground rent, of $28,000.

An economical administration of the affairs of the Company, while it does not limit its means of diffusing good, is due to those by whose liberality we are enabled to occupy our present location; and we recommend its continuance to our successors, until the premises shall be entirely unincumbered.

During the past year, there has been an accession of 117 members, of which 107 have been from building scrip. Over 600 volumes have been added to the Library. It has been computed that the large number of 28,000 volumes have been distributed for home perusal.

Having, in former years, experienced the advantages derived from judicious lectures, the series now in course of delivery, under the auspices of the Company, was commenced—and the active co-operation of the Committee of members appointed at a special meeting of the Company, has insured a large and satisfactory attendance.

The engagement which was entered upon one year ago with the present librarian, Archibald McElroy, comprehending, as it did, the placing the various departments of the Institution under an efficient executive head, has resulted, (in the opinion of the Board of Directors,) greatly to the advantage of the Company, and it is with pleasure that they can bear testimony to the zeal and fidelity he has manifested in the discharge of the onerous duties of his position.

The presentation of the Annual Report has, generally, been embraced as an occasion upon which to invoke the continued support of the community in behalf of the Institution, and especially to commend the advantages it offers to all engaged in mercantile pursuits.

The Company has, from the date of its organization, presented to its members, as a peculiar feature, a quiet retreat, in which the mind might be schooled for its daily task, and, by proper culture, fitted for the severe discipline which trade exacts from its votaries,—and now, at this propitious time, it presents itself to the employer and the employed, capacitated to extend its sphere, and offering to all its generous influence toward success.

In the history of the Company, it may be doubted if a more fitting moment—a period more opportune for such commendation, has ever occurred than the present; for it is apparent that the elements are at work which are to commit the destinies of Philadelphia to those whose interests are embraced in mercantile and manufacturing pursuits; and in view of results so momentous, we may claim from them appreciation of our means of usefulness.

The revulsion which checked, in its blighting visitation, the prosperity of our city and state, has passed away, and renewed energies are putting forth.

But a short time can elapse before the treasures of the great and inexhaustible west, transmitted over our central improvements, will concentrate here as their great eastern depot. Already has the pioneer reached our waters which marks the commencement of ocean navigation by steam to foreign ports, and she has been hailed as the harbinger of that commerce which was the early glory of our city, and which penetrated every part of the globe.

Manufactures in every branch, to an unprecedented extent, are springing up within and around us; and if capital, rightly directed—if effort, vigorous and effective, will accomplish any thing, then is there in the future of our city, much to hope for—and it remains with us a duty to dignify our prosperity by cultivating those impulses which will ennoble our calling, and continue mercantile virtue and probity in the ascendant amongst us.

Nor is it alone as a means of imparting those principles which conduce to a knowledge of commerce and trade, and to individual prosperity, that we claim the support of the community for our Institution. There is a future to our common country, the responsibilities of which, in the measure of their influence, devolves upon her merchants.

As common partners in the great experiment of free government, we may be enabled to appreciate its value by access to the shelves of our library. Thus, contemplating the fate of those nations which have sought to achieve the same inestimable blessings through war and desolation—(nations in which despotism has been welcomed as repose) we may learn to cherish a sentiment for law and order, that will embellish the inheritance we possess, and be its shield and strong arm of defence in the hour of doubt and trial.

In conclusion, we ask for the Mercantile Library Company the countenance and support of our citizens, their encouragement toward its progress;—from our merchants, and those who have adopted commerce and trade as a calling, association with us; and we feel assured in believing that the influence thus extended, will result, in an eminent degree, in elevating the mercantile character of our city, and redound to the advantage of our State and common country.
